

Official Hospitality Programme

Lahinch Golf Club, County Clare, Ireland 4-7 July 2019

Lahinch Golf Club

Founded in 1892, Lahinch Golf Club is steeped in history and prestige. Its Old Course, voted number four course in Ireland, was designed by Old Tom Morris and later enhanced by Dr Alistair MacKenzie in 1926. The Club is also home to 'The South', Ireland's oldest Amateur Championship, which has been won by Major Champions Graeme McDowell, Darren Clarke and 2019 Dubai Duty Free Irish Open host Paul McGinley.

"Lahinch is one of Ireland's great golfing venues, not just because of the golf course but also the town, which is right on the doorstep of the golf club and is always buzzing with life. That whole region on the west coast is just very special."

- Paul McGinley

The Dell
